Japanese Dress. Men and women both wear garments very much resembling the old Roman with a broad girdle. The women wear the hair in a very nice way, something material. The men wear theirs pretty much as the Europeans do. It is still the custom for the ladies, as soon as they marry, to blacken their teeth and shave their eyebrows, in order, I suppose, to prove their affection for their husbands, and I think it ought, for it renders them horribly ugly. The young misses are usually very good looking, and some of them beautiful, but none of them can compare with our young girls at home. They are accepting the modern improvements with wonderful celerity, and are making long strides on

Mr. Ernst Seyd, a London banker, writes to the London Times to correct the estimates of the United States Bureau of Statistics as to the amount of money circulated in the United Kingdom. His corrections are two. He maintains that the gold coin in use is much greater and the paper money in circulation much smaller in amount than has been stated. Instead of £85,-000,000, he claims that there is a sum of at least £105,000,000 in gold coin, and he further estimates the silver and copper coinage at £18,000,000, instead of £16,000,000. But the bank issues vere also greatly overstated. By the last return there was but £38,500,000 of paper money in the Kingdom. The total active circulation is set down as £161,000,000, which is almost £20,000.

The Reason Why You Cry.

Darwin says: Weeping is probably the result of some such chain of events as follows: Children, when wanting food or suffering in any way, cry out loudly, like the young of most other animals, partly as a call to their parents for aid, and partly from any great exertion serving as a relief. Prolonged screaming inevitably leads to the gorging of the blood vessels of the

Although in accordance with this view we must look at weeping as an incidental result, as purposeless as the secretion of tears from a blow outside the eye, or as a sneezing from the retina being affected by a bright light; yet this does not present any difficulty in our understanding how the secretion of tears serves as a relief of suffering
